PRESS

RELEASE

February 27th, 2018 will be a date that will be remembered by Canadians for generations. It will go down in history as one of those “where were you when days.”

It was a sad day for Canada.

Regardless of partisan politics one must always respect the office of the Prime Minister.

On this day, Canadians from all corners of our nation were shocked to hear the explosive testimony of former Attorney General Jody Wilson-Raybould on the SNC-Lavalin affair.

Her story was one of inappropriate, and potentially illegal, pressure brought on her by the highest officials of Justin Trudeau’s government and Justin Trudeau himself - all to let a Liberal-connected corporation off the hook on corruption charges.

Ms. Wilson-Raybould’s testimony tells the story of a Prime Minister who allowed his partisan political motivations to overrule his duty to uphold the law. A Prime Minister who has allowed a systemic culture of corruption to take root in his office.

Andrew Scheer and Canada’s Conservatives are calling on RCMP immediately open an investigation into the numerous examples of obstruction of justice that were detailed in the testimony.

Canada should be a country where we are all equal under the law. Where nobody - regardless of wealth, status, or political connections - is above the law. I believe we can be that country again.

Sincerely,
Todd Doherty, MP
